Question

As a project manager, how will you earn trust within a team?

Response

I'll gain trust by going to parties with my employees so that they are comfortable with me.

Feedback

1) What went well? The candidate's answer was thoughtful and showed an understanding of the importance of building relationships with team members. The candidate demonstrated an understanding of the need to build trust and how to do it. 2) What did not work? The candidate's answer did not directly address the expert suggestion of "sell me a pen". The candidate's answer did not provide any specific examples of how they would build trust with their team. 3) Generate a sample candidate answer response: I understand the importance of building trust within a team. To do this, I will make sure to communicate openly and honestly with my team members. I will also make sure to take the time to get to know them on a personal level, such as by attending team events and social gatherings. Additionally, I will make sure to be consistent in my expectations and provide clear direction and feedback. 4) Rating of the response on scale of 1 to 10 in less than 5 words: 8/10

Question

In the recent pandemic conditions, work from home has become common. How well do you find yourself prepared to lead a remote team?
Answer this assuming that you are a Manager

Response

I believe I am well-prepared to lead a remote team. I have been managing remote teams for the past few years and have developed a good understanding of the challenges and opportunities that come with it. I have also developed a set of strategies and tools to ensure that my team is productive and engaged while working remotely. I have experience in setting up virtual meetings, using collaboration tools, and managing remote teams. I am also familiar with the best practices for remote team management, such as setting clear expectations, providing regular feedback, and creating a sense of community. I am confident that I can lead a remote team effectively and ensure that the team is productive and successful.

Feedback

1) What went well? The candidate provided a comprehensive answer to the question, demonstrating their understanding of the challenges and opportunities of managing a remote team. They also provided examples of strategies and tools they have used in the past to ensure their team is productive and engaged. The candidate also showed familiarity with best practices for remote team management. 2) What did not work? The candidate did not address the expert suggestion to "sell me a pen", which was not relevant to the question. Additionally, the candidate did not provide any examples of how they have implemented the strategies and tools they mentioned. 3) A sample candidate answer response could include: I believe I am well-prepared to lead a remote team.
